PREFACE.

A GLANCE at the meagre list of names recorded herein of those who were alumni of Chigwell School before the year 1876, shows how little claim this book has to the title of Chigwell Register. This is due to the fact that no register of admissions prior to the beginning of the present Head Master's reign is known to exist. We can only say that we have followed up such scanty clues as came in our way to the best of our ability. An instance of the successful working out of a slight clue is shown in the case of Richard Black, whose name will be found under the year 1787. From James Smith's "Chigwell," we learned that Black was "intended for the altar." This led to a search in the lists of the graduates of Oxford and Cambridge, and to the conclusion that Richard Black of Jesus College, Cambridge, was the only man at either University who could have been a contemporary of James Smith. An enquiry of Mr. Gray, the Tutor of Jesus College, turned our guess to a certainty, and the later career of Black was traced by the help of old Clergy Lists and the Gentleman's Magazine.

It is inevitable in a work of this kind that many inaccuracies and mistakes should occur. We shall be glad to have them pointed out to us, so that they may be corrected in any future edition that may be required.

Preface.

We hope that this little book will have a twofold use—first, in quickening the interest of Chigwellians past and present in their School, and, secondly, in bringing O.C.s, scattered as they are throughout the world, more into touch with one another.

We cannot conclude our arduous, though pleasant task, without acknowledging the help that has been afforded us by many O.C.s and friends of the School—they are too numerous to be mentioned individually ; but our special thanks are due to the Head Master and Miss Swallow, without whose encouragement and assistance this work could not have been undertaken.

BRASS OF ARCHBISHOP HARSNETT
IN CHIGWELL CHURCH.

A Short Account
OF THE
FOUNDATION, CHIEF BENEFACTIONS
AND SUBSEQUENT HISTORY
OF Chigwell School.

ON the thirteenth day of April, in the year of our Lord one thousand six hundred and twenty-nine, the Most Reverend Father in God, Samuel, Lord Archbishop of York, Primate of England and Metropolitan—who had been born Samuel Harsnett (son of a baker at Colchester), and had become Vicar of Chigwell—founded, built, and suitably endowed two schools at Chigwell, as a fulfilment of the “bond and obligation laid upon him to praise and magnify the goodness of God, who from a poor vicar of the parish had called him to so high a dignity in His Church.”

The Schools were designed—one for the teaching of the “Latin and Greek tongues”; the other that children might be taught to “Read, Write, Cypher, and cast Accounts, and to learn their Accidence.” The Endowment consisted of three houses and parcels of land in Chigwell, and the Rectory of Tottington, in Norfolk; and the first Trustees appointed for the management of the School are thus described:—

“ Mr. Emanuel Utye, D.D., Vicar of Chigwell ;
Mr. Thomas Beresford, D.D., Parson of Loughton ;
Mr. David Dunbar, of Chigwell, Esquire ;
Mr. Edmund Denny,	} of Chigwell, Gentlemen ;
Mr. Robert Barfoot,
Mr. Thomas Howes,
Mr. Henry Withers,
Mr. Edmund Scott,
Mr. William Nutt, Citizen and Grocer, of London ;
John Allen,	} of Chigwell, Yeomen.’
William Brown,
Jersam Holmes,

Several quaint ordinances did the pious founder devise as to “the Quality of the Latin Schoolmaster”—“who should be a Graduate of one of the Universities, not under seven-and-twenty years of age, a Man skilful in the Greek and Latin Tongues, a good Poet, of a sound religion, neither Papist nor Puritan, of a grave behaviour, of a sober and honest conversation, no Tipler (sic) nor Haunter of Alehouses, no Puffer of Tobacco ; and above all apt to Teach and severe in his government." The principles of the Christian religion, according to the order of the Book of Common Prayer, the infusion of the Phrase and Style of Tully and Terence, and of the Greek and Latin Poets generally ; and the avoidance of all "Novelties & conceited Modern Writers," are characteristic features of the Archbishop's educational views. He also erected, in the north aisle of the Parish Church, a gallery for the use of the Free Scholars—of whom twelve were to be born in the parish of Chigwell, two in Loughton, two in Woodford, and two in Lamborne.

For nearly a century no records are to be found of the history of the School. The names of the Head Masters are lost until we come to the reign of one James Noblett, who about the beginning of the eighteenth century held that office. Of this period of the School's history two names of mark only remain. It is a well-established tradition, which all Chigwellians, at any rate, accept as an Article of their Creed, that William Penn, the great Puritan Founder of Pennsylvania, was educated here ; and Sir Hugh Myddleton, the famous engineer who constructed the New River, was a Governor of the School. It is interesting also to note, in connection with this period, that in 1689 the Vicar of Chigwell was found among the Non-jurors.

In 1712 the School had fallen into financial difficulties, owing to the depreciation in value of the Rectory of Tottington ; and the Hon. William Harvey, of Barrington, Mr. William Nutt, and others, subscribed a sum of money to remove the debt. At the same time, it having been discovered that all or most of the Free Scholars had lost their freedom, owing to irregularity of attendance, and "other such enormities," the Governors were empowered by the Lord Bishop of London, as visitor, to elect from time to time a certain number of boys of Chigwell and other parishes for free education, whilst the Latin Master was authorized to receive payment for the teaching of other children from their parents. Two years later an unknown benefactor (through Mr. Thomas Swallow, one of the Governors), presented eight Bibles, bound up with the Common Prayer, to be carried to Church on Sundays and holydays by such of the children as could use them.*

* The present Head Master, while not claiming any connection with the said Mr. Thomas Swallow, has yet revived and maintains a like gift of Bibles at the time of Confirmation.

In 1718 the Lord Bishop of London made a New Year's gift to the School, so as to enable the Governors to obtain, by purchase, the resignation of Mr. Thomas Johnson, the Latin Master. In 1734 Mr. Spurling, a Governor of the School, gave the sum of eight guineas to be divided equally between the Masters of the Latin and English Schools. In 1775 Mr. Peter Thomas Burford, Latin Master, enlarged at his own cost the School House; and twenty-two years later Mr. Eliab Harvey gave a sum of £100 towards other such improvements. Save for these benefactions, the eighteenth century was as uneventful for the School as the seventeenth had been, until almost at the end of it, when James and Horace Smith—par nobile fratrum—redeemed the Mastership of Peter Thomas Burford from obscurity. A quarter-of-a-century later, under Dr. William John Burford, son of the former Head Master of that name, and himself an old Chigwellian, a wave of prosperity arose. By leave of successive visitors—Bishops Howley and Blomfield, of London—something besides “small Latin and less Greek” began to be taught, and the School soon became one of considerable note. Cotton, Copeland, Charrington, Hodgson, Powell, and other well-known Essex names, are to be found on the Roll of this period; whilst amongst those Governors, to whose vigour the School owed much, were Archdeacon Hamilton, of Loughton, Admiral Sir Eliab Harvey, Sir David Wedderburn, Mr. Robert Bodle, of Woolston Hall, Mr. Copeland, and Mr. John Hodgson, of Bowls.

About the year 1840, however, the Grammar School had again fallen into comparative obscurity, and at one time only one boy was attending the School. A “new scheme” was drawn up and approved by the Visitor. The School did not regain its old position, and in 1849 Dr. Burford resigned. Mr. E. S. Croke succeeded him; but his Draconian severity rendered his rule unpopular, and the School did not recover its former size, though, to judge from the reports of Examiners, its efficiency was considerable. In November, 1855, the Charity Commissioners began to make enquiries into the condition of this and similar foundations; but beyond enquiry nothing was done. In 1862 a Committee of Governors—consisting of the Rev. J. Smith (chairman), the Rev. W. S. H. Meadows, Major Stuart, and Mr. Nathanael Powell—was appointed “to consider and report on the present condition of the Schools, and the means by which their usefulness to the neighbourhood might be increased.” The outcome of this enquiry was the resignation of Mr. Croke, and application to the Visitor (Bishop Tait, of London) and the Charity Commissioners for a new scheme for the management of the School.

The preparation of this scheme was entrusted to the Committee mentioned above, with the addition of the Rev. J. W. Maitland and the Rev. R. Laurence; and during these changes Mr. S. Roose acted as locum tenens for the Head Master. It was not, however, until July 29th, 1867, that a new scheme was finally agreed upon and issued by the Commissioners.

At this time there were only some twelve or fifteen boys in the School. The Governors proceeded to elect the Rev. H. M. Robinson, M.A., of Pembroke College, Oxford, Head Master; and Mr. Forrest Fulton, B.A., of London University, Under Master. Then a period of great prosperity began. To benefit the Grammar School a subscription list was opened, to raise funds for the erection of a new English School on property of the trust, adjoining the Vicarage Field.

On Ascension Day, 1868, Mr. Benjamin Cotton laid the foundation stone of an addition to the School House; and on Michaelmas Day in the same year the School was re-opened by the Lord Bishop of Rochester (Dr. T. L. Claughton), Lord Eustace Cecil, M.P., Archdeacon Wordsworth, of Westminster, and Mr. W. H. Smith, M.P., being also present. The advowson of Tottington was sold to enable the Governors to carry out the alterations. The numbers rose rapidly, a boarding-house being built for the Head Master, and a second house being opened in the village by the Rev. A. C. Wilson, Second Master (vice Mr. Forrest Fulton).

On the 29th of June, 1871, another scheme was published by the Endowed Schools' Commission, and under this scheme the School is working still. A new dining-hall and dormitories were built during the course of this year, from plans drawn by Mr. Dollman, at the cost of £4,000. In 1872 a chapel was erected.

The School went on developing until January, 1876, when Mr. Robinson suddenly resigned his office, and removed with all the Boarders in the School House, excepting two, to a private school in the West of England. Meanwhile the Rev. A. C. Wilson had resigned, and his boarding-house had been broken up. Two months later the Rev. R. D. Swallow, the present Head Master, then Second Master of the Nottingham High School, was elected, and came into residence at Easter in the same year. The check to the School caused by the migration of the greater part of it to Chardstock was severely felt; but simultaneously with Mr. Swallow's appointment the Governors purchased, at a cost of £3,000, Church House, and the field and garden adjoining, which form the present Cricket Field. These came into the possession of the School on Michaelmas-day, 1877. By slow degrees the School recovered itself.

In 1880, and again in 1903, the Tuition Fees were raised, which, while decreasing for awhile the number of day boys attending the School, ensured a higher character for the education afforded. In 1888 a second Boarding House was opened by Mr. Welchman in Church House, which was transferred by Mr. Cobb in 1895 to Harsnetts, and limited to boys under the age of 12. During this quarter of a century the Chapel has been redecorated, and a School Confirmation, first held by Bishop Blomfield, of Colchester, in 1883, has become an annual event ; the ground-floor of Church House has been adapted for a Library ; a Swimming Bath, Gymnasium and Cricket Pavilion have been built by public subscription ; and with the help from the Essex County Council, the old English School fitted up for Science Laboratories, and new Class-rooms erected.

A Leaving Exhibition was founded in 1884 by the will of the late Mr. James Mills, Lord of the Manor of Chigwell ; and the prosperity of the School has been constantly enhanced by private benefactions. Of such benefactors who have passed away we cannot but commemorate John Perry-Watlington, Lord of the Manor of Woolston, together with Nathanael Powell, of Buckhurst Hill, and Alfred Savill, of Chigwell, both Old Chigwellians.

CHIGWELL ;

OR, PRAETERITOS ANNOS.

School, that in Burford's honour'd time
 Rear'd me to youth's elastic prime
 From childhood's airy slumbers—
 School, at whose antique shrine I bow,
 Sexagenarian pilgrim now,
 Accept a poet's numbers.

Those yew-trees never seem to grow ;
 The village stands in statu quo,
 Without a single new house.
 But, heav'ns, how shrunk ! how very small !
 'Tis a mere step from Urmstone's wall,
 "Up town," to Morgan's brewhouse.

There, in yon rough-cast mansion dwelt
 Sage Denham, Galen's son, who dealt
 In squills and cream of tartar ;
 Fronting the room where now I dine,
 Beneath thy undulating sign,
 Peak-bearded Charles the Martyr !

Pent in by beams of mouldering wood
 The parish stocks stand where they stood—
 Did ever drunkard rue 'em ?
 I dive not in parochial law,
 Yet this I know—I never saw
 Two legs protruded through 'em.

* * * * *

Does Philby still exist ? Where now
 Are Willis, Wilcox, Green, and Howe ?
 Ann Wright, the smart and handy ?
 Hilman alone a respite steals
 From Fate ; and—vice Hadley—deals
 In tea and sugar-candy.

Can I my school-friend Belson track?
Where hides him Chamberlaine? Where Black,
 Intended for the altar?
Does life-blood circulate in Bates?
Where are Jack Cumberlege and Yates?
 The Burrells, Charles and Walter?

There at yon ink-bespatter'd shrine
Cornelius Nepos first was mine;
 Here fagg'd I hard at Plutarch:
Found Ovid's mighty pleasant ways,
While Plato's metaphysic maze
 Appear'd like Pluto—too dark.

Here usher Ireland sat—and there
Stood Bolton, Cowel, Parker, Ware,
 Medley, the pert and witty,
And here, crack station, near the fire—
Sat Roberts, whose Haymarket sire
 Sold oil and spermaceti.

Yon pew, the gallery below,
Held Nancy, pride of Chigwell Row,
 Who set all hearts a-dancing:
In bonnet white, divine brunette,
O'er Burnet's field I see thee yet,
 To Sunday Church advancing.

Seek we the churchyard; there the yew
Shades many a twain whom once I knew,
 Now nameless and forgotten;
Here towers Sir Edward's marble bier,
Here lies stern Vickery, and here,
 My father's friend, Tom Cotton.

The common herd serenely sleep,
Turf bound, "in many a mouldering heap,"
 Pent in by bands of osier;
While at the altar's foot is laid
The founder of the school, array'd
 In mitre and in crosier.

JAMES SMITH.

CHIGWELL REVISITED.

Deputed by the tuneful Nine,
 A pilgrim to an Eastern shrine,
 I once again out-sally ;
 Again to Chigwell wander back,
 And, more excursive, aim to track,
 Each neighbouring hill and valley.

Strange that a village should survive,
 For ten years multiplied by five,
 The same in size and figure.
 Knowing nor plenty nor distress—
 If foiled by fortune, why no less ?
 If favoured, why no bigger ?

* * * * * * *

I pass the Vicar's white abode,
 And, pondering, gain the upward road,
 By busy thoughts o'erladen,
 To where "The pride of Chigwell Row"
 Still lives—a handsome widow now,
 As erst a lovely maiden.

* * * * * * *

Diverging from the road, the sod
 I tread that once a boy I trod,
 With pace not quite so nimble—
 But where's the May-pole next the lane ?
 Who dared to banish from the plain
 That wreath-encircled symbol ?

Abridge, her tank, and waterfall,
 The path beneath Sir Eliab's* wall,
 I once again am stepping ;
 Beyond that round we rarely stirred,
 Loughton we saw, but only heard
 Of Ongar and of Epping.

*Sir ELIAB HARVEY, K.C.B., of Rolls Court, Chigwell, a distinguished sailor, commanded "The Fighting Téméraire" at the battle of Trafalgar ; was a governor of Chigwell School ; d. 1830.

Seek we "the river's" grassy verge
Where all were destined to immerge,
Or willing or abhorrent ;
I view the well-known " Mill-hole " still—
But time has dwindled to a rill
What seem'd of yore, a torrent.

Here fell destroyer, many a wound
The woodman's axe has dealt around :
Lee Grove in death reposes.
Yet while her Dryads seek their tombs,
The miller's moated garden blooms
With all its wonted roses.

* * * * *

Twilight steals on : I wander back,
The listless ploughman's homeward track
Again in thought I follow ;
Or sit the antique porch within,
Awed by the belfry's deafening din,
And watch the wheeling swallow.

Chigwell, I cease thy charms to sing—
Time bears me elsewhere on his wing ;
Perhaps, ere long, the poet,
Who now in mental vigour bold,
Parades, erect, thy Churchyard mould,
May sleep, supine, below it.

JAMES SMITH.

SCHOOL SONG.

Written by the Rev. T. MARSDEN and composed by
C. M. WOOD, Esq.

The musical score for 'SCHOOL SONG' is written for piano in G major (one sharp) and 2/4 time. It consists of six systems of two staves each. The first system begins with a mezzo-forte (mf) dynamic marking. The second system continues the melody and accompaniment. The third system concludes with a double bar line and repeat dots. The fourth system is labeled 'Chorus' and begins with a piano (p) dynamic marking. The fifth and sixth systems continue the chorus. The score ends with a final double bar line and repeat dots. The notation includes various musical symbols such as treble and bass clefs, key signatures, time signatures, dynamic markings, and note values.

Harris, Joseph.

Leath, George.

Stephenson, Edward, of 50 Great Ormond Street, London.

The above three names occur in the Times of 26th March, 1804, in connection with a challenge sent by Edward Stephenson, aided and abetted by George Leath and Joseph Harris, all three Chigwell Boys, to one Etienne du Cas, aged 17, a relation of Prince de Condé, then residing at Leytonstone. Stephenson sent a letter to du Cas, stigmatising him as a coward, and challenging him to fight with pistols. When Stephenson, stated to be 14 years of age, was brought before the magistrate at Bow Street, much amusement was caused by his youthful appearance, which he tried to disguise by wearing "a collar up to his ears and a very thick neckcloth." He was ordered to apologise to du Cas, and Leath and Harris were bound over to keep the peace.
